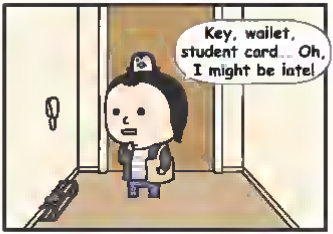
How do you say it in Korean?

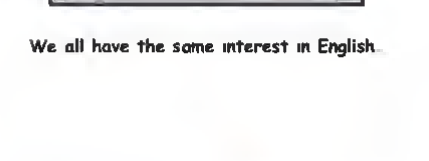


In my English class, ..

.. there are people of so many different nationalities.

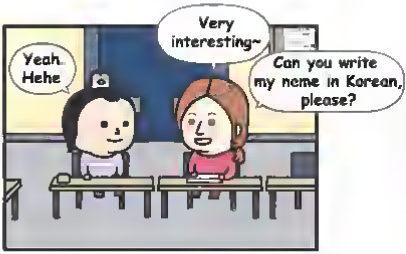
Then one day,
after we finished our class.

We all have the same interest in English



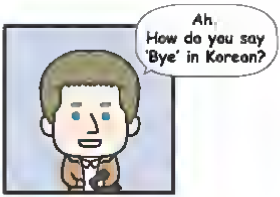
I have to finish reading this book today. So I'm going to go to the library after this class
Is it for your work? Oh, is this Korean?

But we also have an interest about each other's language as much as in English.

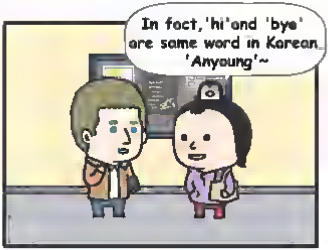


So when I get the chance to introduce Korean to a classmate like this,...

... I get excited.



Then R asked me
how ta say bye in Korean.



I had a short chat with R
from Germany.

The conversation almost finished and we were about to say good-bye.

It was very quick and simple but I was glad that I taught R a Korean word.

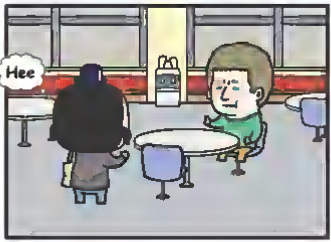
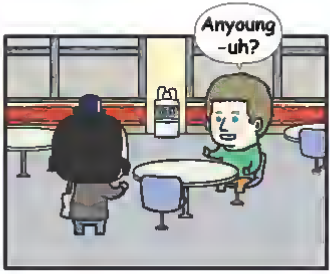
The next day.

I went to the college and met R waiting in the foyer waiting the for class to start.



R seemed like he was trying to remember what I taught him yesterday. Fortunately, he opened his mouth soon with a bright face.



Anyoung
-uh?

Ah~~
..uh?

??

He has good hearing.

Anyong
-uh-uh!

Anyung!
Uh!(Yes)
He he.
Oh, sorry.
I've got a call.
See you!
